

Childhood Immune Disorder Risk Map per the Richet allergy model

High risk of immune system disorders

Medium risk of immune system disorders

Low risk of immune system disorders

* For the first few days, proteins fed to the newborn are directly absorbed into the bloodstream. Any protein not naturally present in colostrum, can be expected to cause the development of allergy to that protein.